Bremen | Germany
July 8-11, 2014

Since the 1990s the theory and the practice of intervention have become some of the most heatedly debated topics (not only) in the field of International Relations. This summer school at the Bremen International Graduate School of Social Sciences (BIGSSS) is an occasion for advanced M.A. students and Ph.D. candidates of the Social Sciences to intensely discuss their work on interventions with a group of international scholars. The term 'intervention' is understood in its broadest sense and also addresses projects in the neighboring fields of development policy, social policy etc. The deadline for applications is February 28, 2014.
